

By limiting the ability of any service provider to supply detailed local information you are compromising the freedom of speech. In addition you are also setting a double standard that creates unfair business practices and biased competitive markets. If you are going to limit the ability of XM to broadcast local information then you would also need to do so with every internet provider, cable and satellite system. You would have to shutdown weather.com and The Weather Channel. You would have to stop services like AOL, Yahoo and MSN from allowing local weather and news to be displayed on user homepages. This is unconstitutional. You are hurting the American public more than you are helping anyone. I sincerely hope you come to see this before it is too late. While I do not subscribe to any satellite television or radio service I do believe in the freedom of speech, honest and fair market competition and the ability for every American to have all freely available information at their fingertips.
